This is a small tool that can be used for reading CD's and copying to another CD / DVD if desired. This package includes a 32bit version of the executable and a 32bit DLL which you can use together with your existing programs. The DLL can act as a filter to make all the.iso tracks readable. It can even be used to copy tracks and make an.iso file from a CD. You can test to see how it works with this simple example: C:\> cdcopy.exe /P mycopy.iso C:\> cddump /? Usage: C:\cddump.exe [/P] [/F] | | /Copy [/C] [/R] [/O] [/P] | | [/F] [/R] | | In argument, you give a directory of the target (C:\), a copy path to the source (C:\mycopy.iso) and the file name of the.iso file in the target (mycopy.iso). You can also write in CD information and create image file from the CD information. /Copy copies all tracks from the source to target CD. /P Makes the copied ISO file playable on any computer. /O Causes the target (CD) to play without burning. /F Causes the target (CD) to be readable. /C Causes the target (CD) to be copyable. /R Causes the target (CD) to be a readable CD (readonly). /R Causes the target (CD) to be created from the source (CD) using a CD-R image file. This command writes all the tracks of the source (CD) to target CD as a set of tracks into a single image file that can be burned onto another CD. C:\cddump.exe /R /P mycopy.iso If you want to test the CD copy, you can just try this one: C:\> cdcopy.exe /P mycopy.iso The syntax of the command that will copy tracks from one CD to another is: C:\cddump.exe /R /P mycopy.iso When you run this command, all tracks from the source (CD) will be copied to the target (CD). C:\cddump.exe
